The large brick store and warehouse Sycamore street at the corner of Tabb, for a great many years occupied by McIlwaine & Co., was to-day sold at auction by Rev. Richard Mcllwaine, executor of his father, the late A. G. Mcliwaine. The property was divided into three store-lots of 30 feet front each on Sycamore street. The corner store was purchased by Mr. John G. Dunn for $5,100, and the other two by Mr. Joseph

E. Venable for $3.175 each. Dr. Thomas Withers, president of the University Alumni Association, in this city. has published a call for a meeting of the alumni and friends of the University of Virginia, to be held on Tuesday evening. The object of the meeting is to cooperate with the authorities at the University in securing the great McCormick telescope. Many of the alumni reside in Petersburg, and it is believed they will raise a handsome contribution towards securing the tele-

Our tobacco manufacturers, in common with those throughout the country, naturally feel deep interest in the action of Congress on the subject of the reduction of the tobacco tax. The long agitation has materially affected their business, and one or two large establishments have been closed for months, awaiting the action of Congress, while others have materially curtailed their trade. Whatever may be the sentiment of the manufacturers here as to the propriety of his agitation, which has been so frequent in the last few years, there is a unanimity of feeling in one respect, which is the same all over the country among those who favor posed in Mr. Tucker's amendment. The trade desires a short time, at least, in which to make arrangements for the disposition of the stock on hand. Several of our large manufacturers, it is understood, will visit Washington the first of the week to urge this matter among congressmen. A telegram from a distinguished senator was reeeived yesterday, intimating that the Senate will hardly be able to act on the bill before adjournment.

KING WILLIAM COUNTY. SPECIAL TERM OF THE CIRCUIT COURT-IMPOR-

TANT WILL CASE-THE CROPS-COOL WEA-

KING WILLIAM C. H., June 8, 1878. special term of the Circuit Court-Judge Jeffries presiding-has been in session in this county during this week. An important suit, involving about $75,000, is being tried. This amount represents the estate of a man named Gregg, who died in this county some time in 1870, and who for a number of years preceding his death resided in the West. The fight over this property is triangular. The city of Indianapolis is plaintiff, and seeks to set up a will in her favor made about 1850. This is contested by Dallas county, Iowa, claiming under a later will; and the heirs-at-law, residents of this county, claim that Gregg died intestate. Counsel of ability are employed on all sides. A jury has been chosen to try the question of the existence of a will; and if any, which is the true will. The Court to-day adjourned over until Wednesday next, but I hear it hinted that a compro-

Senator Ferry, who was President of the Senate when the electoral vote was counted, came before the committee at 2:20 and remained until twenty minutes to 4. His testimony elicited nothing of special import. He remembered that Returning-Board Anderson brought him the returns, and finding the endorsement on the envelope was not in form, he so told him; whereupon Anderson took them away. When they were brought again Anderson was not the messenger. He found wrong endorsations on returns from sundry other States, including Virginia and North Carolina, and suggested the fact to the messengers before receiving them. He could not recall whether he talked with his party friends about the informality of the Louisiana returns. He did not remember to whom he first communicated that there were two sets of returns from Louisiana. Mr-McMahon pressed him on this point, and asked if he remembered any member of the House with whom he talked in regard to this matter, but he could not remember. Mr. Potter wanted to know that as he received one set of returns by mail with an informal endorsation, which he did not return, and one came by messenger with an informal endorsation, which he did not receive, but which were returned to Louisiana, was he not surprised on the 2d of January to receive two sets of returns with a correct endorsation-one by mail and one by messenger. He said he was not surprised, and did not suppose from this circumstance that there had been any change made in the returns. He finally recollected that Mr. Kasson, and he believed Mr. Garfield, came over to the Senate and asked him what he intended to do with the extra returns, and that he told them that he would lay them before the House. He remembered that Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, expressed House that there were two sets of Republican returns from Louisiana. Mr. McMahon asked him please to state the name of any Democratic member of Congress to whom he stated there were returns were laid before the House, but he could not recall the name of any one. This question was in consequence of a remark of Mr. Reed that Mr. Ferry no doubt commu-Republicans in regard to the matter.

genuine paper, and let it go down as part of his evidence. He was a member of the State Canvassing Board in 1876. He was shown after the election a number of telegrams to Governor Stearns; most of them were from W. E. Chandler, and one or more from Zach. Chandler. The telegrams set forth in a general way that the presidential election and salvation of the country depended on the vote of Florida, and that efforts must be made to give her vote to Hayes. If neessary means and troops would be furnished in furtherance of that object. The amount of means was not stated, and no mode was pointed out how to secure the State for Hayes, except the suggestion that an effort must be made to get the returns from different counties. The telegrams began to come in some two or three days after done was canvassing the returns. Some northern Republicans came to Florida to represent Hayes. Among the number were W. E. Chandler, General Wallace, Atterney-General Little of Ohio, General

Noyes, and General Barlow. Those were the most active. Don't know that Noves was considered the leader any more than the others. Don't know as Wallace or Noves told me directly that they had authority to represent Hayes, but was told through others. It was represented to me that Noyes was a particular friend of Hayes, and that he represented him, and that anything he said the President would be responsible for. Wallace told me on several occasions that if Mr. Hayes's election was secured the members of the Returning Board would be taken care of. On one occasion Chandler said. He did not like to say it to me, but he would, and spoke for Wallace, that if the State should go for Hayes Cowgell and myself would be well taken care of. He would say so by the authority of General Noves and for himself. Noves never said to witness that he would be rewarded, but he felt assured that Noyes had said so. Never went to ask for anything from him, and he did not come to me to make promises. Directly after the canvass, and on the eve of returning North, Noyes came to my house in a carriage with a number of other visiting statesmen and thanked me for the action I had taken, and congratulated me on the result, and went off happy. He said I had acted nobly. Never saw him after he left Tallahassee; addressed one letter to him; have no copy of it.

·What purported to be a copy of the letter was produced by Mr. Hiscock. It was dated January 27, 1877, and commences: Lamentable changes have taken place since we parted on the 6th of December last. Now we are humiliated with the near approach of defeat-not an honest defeat, but a defeat that will be brought about by craven submission and sheer cowardice."
